The Cory Society is named for Santa Clara County’s first physician, Dr. Benjamin Cory.

At just 25 years old, Dr. Cory ventured across the plains by ox cart in search of a community where he could put his skills to use.

He ended up in the beautiful Santa Clara Valley, where he rallied the community to establish the Santa Clara Infirmary – the Bay Area’s first hospital, built in 1876 on the land where SCVMC still stands today.

If I ever was generous, I still am the same. It gives me more real pleasure to confer a favor than to receive one.
